

Finding Your Dream Relationships

They're out there waiting for you. But finding them has never been more risky. New search technology helps you find them without the risk.

■ You're probably one of the millions of people who have a love-hate relationship with Facebook. You love sharing with friends and perhaps with their friends, but hate your personal information being shared with thousands of unknown companies.

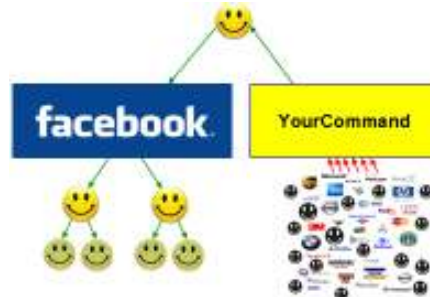

Facebook's business model uses your personal information to advertise. Like many other companies, its mantra is: The more we know about you, the better we can serve you. Facebook tracks everything you do on its site as well as the millions of sites that have a "like" button.

Some call this stalking, and it has alarmed the Facebook users who understand this as well as virtually all privacy advocates.

But it gets worse. The devices you use to access Facebook have millions of components running millions of lines of code. Can any single company guarantee that everything works in your favor? Of course not. Even if Facebook wanted to protect all of your personal information, there are simply too many things beyond its control.

Trust no one but yourself. A brilliant, yet simple solution was promoted during World War II by Winston Churchill who said "It's wonderful how well men keep secrets they have never been told." The only way to make sure that your private information is safe is by not disclosing it. So, it's good to know there's a company that says this: The less we know about you, the better we can serve you.™

Introducing YourCommand

We're a free service that does things very differently:

- We "persistently" search day and night for the people, products, and services that you want.
- We protect your privacy by not accepting personal information.
- We give simple, clean, results - what Consumer Reports would look like if it could personalize your search results.

- We give you private messaging so you can get to know a person before you identify yourself. You eliminate unwanted relationships by simply not replying so you, the receiver, are always in control.
- We add location to your search so you can be notified when you are getting physically close to a good match.

Control, control, control. For the first time, you control all of the searching and interaction to find what you want.

With all of these free features, how does YourCommand make money?

Relationship mentoring. No search can guarantee results but there is an easy way to improve your chances. YourCommand is pioneering the concept of a Close Hit™ so that you can learn from what almost happened, such as someone who almost contacted you. You'll be able to compare what they want with what you offer so that you can make changes to improve your results. You can even contact them as needed.

You can also communicate with and learn from similar people who are having more success. All of this mentoring costs just $20/month.

Start YourCommand today. With no risk, much better control, and respect for your privacy, there has never been a better way to find the best people, products, and services.